

Cultural Capital: Media and Arts in New York City
MCC-UE 1152
New York University
Media, Culture, and Communication

Instructors: James Stanley and Luke Stark

Short Course Description

This course explores the multi-faceted nature of New York City as a cultural and economic hub for media and the arts, arguably the cultural capital of the world. Classroom instruction is supplemented by site visits, guest lectures, and field research to develop an appreciation of the ways that media and the arts have shaped the work and leisure of life in New York City for the past one hundred years. How did New York City become such a focal point for the creative industries? What goes on behind-the-scenes? Topics include: Music and live spectacle, Broadway and off-Broadway theatre, publishing, Madison Ave and modern advertising, television and radio, the museums of New York, galleries, artists and the art market, the Harlem Renaissance, and alternative media.

Student Learning Objectives

- Describe and analyze the emergence and continued strength of the media and the arts as core activities in New York City, historically and contemporaneously;
- Achieve basic understanding of the economics of the media and creative arts;
- Explore issues related to the working lives of media practitioners and artists;
- Understand current challenges and opportunities for media and the arts in New York City;
- Develop skills in archival and field research.

GENERAL COURSE POLICIES

Students with Special Needs

Students with special needs, such as physical and/or learning disabilities, should inform the course instructors at the beginning of the semester. The instructors will work with the student to arrange reasonable accommodations, including extra time for tests and other assignments or special access to material, in accordance NYU’s general guidelines. Students must also be registered with the Moses Center for Students with Disabilities at 212 998-4980, 240 Greene Street (see www.nyu.edu/csd, for more information).

Religious Observance

Students who observe religious holidays that may interfere with the class schedule should inform the course instructors well in advance of anticipated absences to ensure that appropriate arrangements are made for the completion of course work. See NYU’s Policy on Religious Holidays at www.nyu.edu/student.affairs/students.guide/policies.html, for more information.

Academic Honesty

The relationship between students and faculty is the keystone of the educational experience. This relationship takes an honor code for granted. Mutual trust, respect and responsibility are foundational requirements. Thus, how you learn is as important as what you learn. A University education aims not only to produce high quality scholars, but to also cultivate honorable citizens.

Academic integrity is the guiding principle for all that you do, from taking exams, making oral presentations to writing term papers. It requires that you recognize and acknowledge information derived from others, and take credit only for ideas and work that are yours.

Plagiarism, one of the gravest forms of academic dishonesty in university life, whether intended or not, is academic fraud. In a community of scholars, whose members are teaching, learning and discovering knowledge, plagiarism cannot be tolerated. Plagiarism is failure to properly assign authorship to a paper, a document, an oral presentation, a musical score and/or other materials which are not your original work. You plagiarize when, without proper attribution, you do any of the following:

- Copy verbatim from a book, an article or other media;
- Download documents from the Internet and present them as your own;

For a full statement of the Academic Integrity Policy governing this course see: http://http://steinhardt.nyu.edu/policies/academic_integrity

Grade Appeals

Contact the course directors with a short note explaining your concerns about the grade in question no sooner than 24 hours after receiving the grade, making specific reference to the grading rubric outlined in this syllabus. The course directors will respond in writing or set up a meeting to discuss your concerns.

Grading Rubric

(Plus and minus grades indicate the standing within the above grades)

A = Excellent (numerical equivalent: 90 – 100%)

Outstanding work in all respects: comprehensive understanding, thoughtful and creative interpretations, well-focused and original insights, well-reasoned commentary and analysis. Writing is clear, analytical, and organized. Arguments offer specific examples and concisely evaluate evidence. Class participation is consistent, insightful, and respectful of others.

B = Good (numerical equivalent: 80 – 89%)

Work demonstrates complete and accurate understanding of course materials, presenting a reasonable degree of insight and a competent level of analysis with proper evidence. Writing is easy to follow and well-structured. Class participation is consistent and respectful of others.

C = Adequate (numerical equivalent: 70 – 79%)

Work demonstrates adequate understanding but may be incomplete, vague or contains some important errors or weaknesses. Work may lack concrete, specific examples and illustration. Writing may be awkward or hard to follow. Arguments are unorganized, without specific examples or analysis. Class participation is unreliable, off-topic, and/or disrespectful of others.

D = Unsatisfactory (numerical equivalent: 60 – 69%)

Work demonstrates a lack of understanding and fails to express basic aspects of the course. This work is incomplete, and evidences little understanding of the readings or discussions. Arguments demonstrate inattention to detail, misunderstand course material and overlook significant themes. Class participation is spotty, superficial, and/or disrespectful of others

F = Failed. Work was not submitted or completed according to assigned parameters or completely failed to express the most basic and elementary aspects of the course.
